

India Tiger Safari

Wildlife Wonderment

Honeymoon adventures for animal-loving couples

By Becca Hensley

If your first date was a trip to the zoo or your favorite rendezvous involved riding horses, walking dogs or hiking with llamas, if you still like to watch cute cat videos, have more than one teddy bear, and can't pass by a puppy without cooing, we're pretty sure you're an animal person. For honeymooners who need creatures to make life complete, we've gathered a menagerie of honeymoons that embrace furry friends as their focus.

TIGER TERROIR

In a storybook landscape right out of a Rudyard Kipling tale, Ranthambore National Park sports the ruins of ancient temples, brushy, lake-studded jungle terrain and winding bumpy roads. Amid it all, around 40 endangered tigers roam, some of the last of their kind in the world. Once the royal hunting ground of the maharaja of Jaipur, the national park now protects its feline residents — not to mention plenty of other species, such as sloth bears and wild boar. Sign up with Micato Safaris for a peerless tour of India's top sights, which can include a few days at Ranthambore. You'll stay at Oberoi Vanyavilas, a tented, glamping-style hotel on the edges of the park. micato.com/india