

New Year's Resolutions for Travelers: Hottest Travel Trends 2017

Excerpted from an article by Larry Olmsted

Go on Safari: If you have not been you are missing what I think is truly the world's bucket list trip. I've spoken to many people who didn't think they would be wowed who were blown away. In fact, it is hard to imagine a personality who would not love a good safari. A well-executed trip is so amazing it is difficult to even comprehend how amazing it is if you haven't been. If you have been, go again to a different place (like Botswana!) or go to see different animals like tigers

Wildlife safaris are more popular than ever, and If you haven't been, consider 2017.

in India or polar bears in Manitoba. I've been more than half a dozen times and I'm going back this year to see gorillas in Rwanda. To really make a safari special, whether it is in Southern or Eastern Africa or even tiger viewing in India, check out the world's best and most awarded safari specialist, Micato Safaris, in detail here at Forbes.
