

Ways to Safari in Africa

Excerpted from an article by Colleen Clark

Our cheat sheet will give you a leg up, no matter what type of African Safari you're looking for.

Game Viewing: In Hemingway's day, safaris followed game across the terrain, setting up camps along the way. Today's mobile safaris channel that same spirit: Micato Safaris (13-day trips from $19,365 per person) plans some of the best tours, including a Tanzania and Kenya trip that travels from the rhino-filled foothills of Mount Kenya to the grasslands of the Maasai Mara, where giraffes parade through the savannah.

The Trip Planner: Mark Nolting, President, Africa Adventure Company

In addition to creating safari itineraries for more than 25 years—from visits to Ethiopian villages to wildlife watching in Mozambique's Niassa reserve—Nolting, a T+L A-List travel agent, has literally written the book on the continent's best vantage points: his Africa's Top Wildlife Countries is in its seventh edition.

Micato Safaris

Since 1966, the Pinto family of Kenya and New York has been welcoming guests to Africa with an extraordinary level of service and in-country expertise. Guide Alan Petersen has led David Beckham and Robert De Niro. T+L Trip pick Discover Africa's Heritage. Visit UNESCO-protected areas such as Kenya's Lake Nakuru and Zanzibar's Stone Town.

